Hitler Offers Peace...On His Own Terms

Proposal Calls For Partition Poland & Other Concessions

BRITISH AND FRENCH PRESS REJECT PLAN

Claim Hitler's Offer Contains No Grounds for Honorable Peace; Emphasize Folly of Placing Trust in Fuehrer's Pledged Word

Focal point of interest in the international situation during the past week has been proposals for peace laid down by Herr Hitler in his reichstag speech recently. As had been anticipated, the suggestions contained proposal for setting up of a small, semi-independent state of Poland, to act as a buffer between Germany and Russia, return of German colonies, and other important concessions to the Reich, but made no mention of Czechoslovakia or Austria or other territories seized by Hitler during the past few years. No official reply to the proposals has yet been published by Britain and France, but Prime Minister Chamberlain is expected to deal exhaustively with the subject in a speech to the House of Commons on Thursday next. In the meantime, the British press has been outspoken in its condemnation of the proposals. Reiterating and emphasizing Prime Minister Chamberlain's statement of last week, that the present German government cannot be relied upon to keep its pledged word, the papers point out that peace on Hitler's proposed terms would be another triumph for armed aggression. It is suggested that complete evacuation of Poland is a necessary forerunner to any truce or discussions of peace.

Also of vital interest to Canadians is the arrangement whereby Canada will become the air training school of the Empire, and also greatly increase its production of airplanes.

Under the plan, as announced by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Canada will provide training for pilots of Great Britain and the overseas Dominions—except South Africa, which will train its own airmen—and after the completion of this training the pilots and other personnel will then be re-assigned to the R.A.F. or the units of their own countries for active service. It is also announced that steps will be taken to greatly increase Canadian production of airplanes and the two plans are expected to result in a largely increased number of training schools and speeding up of airplane production in this country. A British mission to discuss details of the plan is already on its way to Canada.

On the Western front, heavy artillery fire was preliminary to vigorous German attacks, but the French communiqué states that these were repulsed with hand grenades and rifle fire. German patrols are reported as being very active in the Saarbrücken region, where most of the fighting referred to has taken place.

At sea, British naval units were attacked by German airplanes but were driven off by anti-aircraft fire. The official British statement on the engagement mentions no losses by the attackers but Norwegian observers report that three of the German planes subsequently made forced landings in the North Sea. Meanwhile, the German fleet remains safely bottled up in the Kiel Canal and the British navy is vigilantly guarding against any attempt by Germany to loose her raiders on ocean shipping. A fantastic rumor set Berlin agog for an hour or so on Wednesday when it was reported that the Allies were suing for peace, that King George had abdicated and that the Chamberlain government had been forced to resign. Prior to its denial by official sources, the rumor brought numerous telephone calls to various news services in Berlin, including one from the office of the ex-Crown Prince.

In a speech on Tuesday morning, Hitler asserted that if Germany's proposals for peace are rejected, she will fight on until the issue is decided. Repeating a previously-made statement that Germany cannot be overthrown by any outside force, he said that the Reich would never again be forced to her knees.

In the diplomatic field, an approaching showdown between Russia and Poland held the spotlight. Even as delegates were en route to Moscow to discuss terms of an agreement with Soviet authorities, the Finnish government pushed preparations for the evacuation of Helsinki, should the need arise.

A somewhat humorous touch was added to the sombre reading of war reports when it was learned that Italy is having black-out trouble. It Duce has, as yet, found no way to force the volcano Vesuvius to obey his "blackout" orders and while the nearby city of Naples can be thrown into complete darkness the volcano emits its customary ruddy glow, making a perfect target for attacking aircraft.

More Bicycles Being Carried for Sightseeing

Since the free checking of bicycles in baggage cars for passengers of the Canadian National Railways was inaugurated two years ago, there has been a noticeable increase in the use of this handy means of locomotion for sightseeing purposes, according to A. A. Gardiner, Assistant General Passenger Traffic Manager of the Company.

"While the bicycle does not take the place of transportation over long distances, its use for side trips to off-line places of interest has become particularly popular among the young people travelling by rail," said Mr. Gardiner. "In addition to its use by various youth hostel movements, the bicycle is also a favorite medium for sightseeing by other people who wish to take by the leading to the scenic areas away from the railway line," added Mr. Gardiner.

Lord Tweedsmuir Pays Official Visit to Trenton Air Station

Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General of Canada, paid an official visit to Trenton Air Station, where the Dominion's new crop of fighting airmen are receiving their finishing touches before going overseas. In honor of His Excellency, an aerial display was put on by some of the advanced students, which was watched with interest by the official party, UPPER LEFT, consisting of, from LEFT to RIGHT, Commander Edison Sherwood, aide-de-

Regular Meeting Of Town Council

A meeting of the council of the Town of Wainwright was held on Tuesday, October 3rd, when members of the council present were Councillors Robinson, Cork, Billing and Lisle.

In the absence of Mayor Middlemass, Deputy Mayor Cork assumed the chair and presided at this meeting. The recorded proceedings of council at its regular meeting of September 19th, 1939, were read and on motion by Councillor Robinson, were adopted and confirmed as read.

A reply was received from Mr. Thomas L. Rawn to the communication of the Secretary-Treasurer on instruction of council at its last regular meeting and, on motion by Councillor Robinson, the reply letter was read.

A communication from Mr. Roy F. Carl, relative to arrears of rental and repairs, was received and, on motion by Councillor Lismore, the Secretary-Treasurer was instructed to notify Mr. Carl that council will adhere to the recommendation adopted by council at its regular meeting of August 1st, 1939, in accordance with the motion of the Chairman of the Property and Assessment Committee, unanimously carried at the last regular meeting of council.

On motion by Councillor Lismore, council rescinded the resolution, duly carried at the regular meeting of April 18th, 1939, requiring persons presenting tenders for properties advertised to pay the cost of advertising and that in case of registration of all properties so sold the transferee be required to pay the increased fee for registration as published in the Alberta Gazette of August 21st, last.

The Finance Committee reported, recommending payment of accounts in a total of $6,414.37, as follows: Registrar, L.T.O., tax transfers $22.00; Bank of Montreal, note and interest 2,537.41; Alta. Govt. Phones, acct. 8.50; F. G. Conroy, for City of Edmonton 8.25; Miles Transport, for City of Edmonton 4.00; Wain S.D., on 1939 requis. 1,500.00; Calgary Power Co., acct. 108.50; Registrar, L.T.O., tax transfers 15.00; Fred Sheffield, scavenging 125.00; Mrs. P. M. Christensen, caretaking, etc. 15.00; Harley Kenville, salary 100.00; N. B. Kenny, salary 175.00.

Apple Conscription

The federal government will buy 1 1/2 million barrels of apples from eastern Canada for canning and drying. It was announced recently. This will help to replace the loss of Canada's apple market in the United Kingdom.

In British Columbia, 500,000 boxes of export varieties will be purchased if unsold by next March 31.

LIFE OF CADETS AT WEST POINT

Edward Small resumes his production career with a picturesque and interesting story of cadet social and sport life at West Point. While the film depends heavily on dialogue as an interpretive medium, exciting sequences and spectacular episodes are not lacking. The plot basis rests on the traditionally rigid honor system through which the cadets govern themselves. Consequently most of the action concerns the cadets. But the required romantic love interest has not been ignored.

Although a great many players are presented the main responsibility for carrying the story rests upon Louis Hayward, Tom Brown, Richard Carlson, Charles D. Brown and Joan Fontaine. All are natural and convincing in their roles with Hayward, who has a rather difficult character to portray, appearing to good advantage.

In comparison with other West Point or Annapolis service stories "Duke of West Point" approaches its subject from a unique angle. That it will have a strong appeal and be of interest to those who hold high regard for the nation's Military Academy goes without saying. For the younger element there is an inspiring ring to this picture, the week and offering at the Elite theatre. Even though it discredited its hero for a good portion of the way, it shows how a boy with strength of character can make good under the most adverse handicaps.

Miss Edith Hiss, who teaches at Donalds, spent the holidays with her parents in town.

Youth Training Group Sponsors Social Evening

As their first endeavor of the season, the local unit of the Dominion Provincial Youth Training group sponsored a delightful evening's entertainment in the L.O.O.F. hall on Wednesday of last week.

Commencing with a card party the evening got off to a good start with Mr. Ted Carrier taking charge and directing the moves of whist tables. About 25 tables in all were in play. Prize winners included Mrs. V. Nelson, 1st; Miss Ruth Pawsey, 2nd; Mr. L. Mitchell, 1st, and Mr. F. Johns, 2nd.

Refreshments were served and the floor cleared for several hours of dancing to mappy music supplied by local musicians.

Wain. Pres. Young People's Convention

A Young People's Convention taking in all the Young People concerned in the Wainwright Presbytery from Tofield to Wainwright will be held in Viking on October 21st and 22nd. The Convention will largely follow the same procedure as the one last year, except for two alterations.

It will open on Saturday afternoon and conclude on Sunday evening. The Young People will be glad to hear that Rev. Horace Burkholder will again this year be the chief speaker. In addition, it is expected that another outside speaker will be available for the banquet on Saturday evening. The latter will also take part in the Sunday morning service. A full program of the Convention will appear in the next issue of this paper.

The Viking Young People are making arrangements for the billeting of all Young People coming from other towns who may wish to stay over for the next day. A larger number even than last year is expected.

Horse Club to Hold Colt Fair Oct. 20th

A cup or bronze medal and ribbons are to be awarded the prize winners. For information, phone or write G. S. Baker, president, or Ray Greer, secretary of the Horse Club. All members are asked to attend the annual meeting to be held the same afternoon.

Final Crop Report For Year Ending '39

Nature has been generous to Canada this year, harvesting returns revealing good crops of all the staples in all the provinces of the Dominion. The grain crops in the prairie provinces are proving to be particularly good. Not only does the estimate still stand that the wheat crop will be the fifth heaviest on record for the three provinces and the heaviest since 1932, but threshing returns show the grain to be of high grade and excellent quality.

The first estimate of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics places the wheat production of the three Prairie Provinces at 422,000,000 bushels, which is 96,000,000 bushels more than last year and compares with a ten-year average of 287,852,000 bushels. Private estimates released subsequent to the first official estimate indicate that wheat production will be substantially higher than 422,000,000 bushels. The estimate average wheat yields per acre by provinces follow: Manitoba, 18.4 bushels; Saskatchewan, 15.3 bushels; Alberta, 17.3 bushels.

The 1939 wheat acreage in the Prairie Provinces, officially estimated at 25,815,000 acres, was more than 800,000 acres in excess of last year. Production of coarse grains is slightly lower than a year ago, but winter feed supplies are generally sufficient. Production of oats is estimated at 223,788,000 bushels and barley at 77,682,000 bushels.

Threshing is practically finished in Manitoba and is approaching completion in Saskatchewan. In Alberta, operations have been delayed by September rains, but threshing is now more than half completed. Delivery of wheat by farmers to country elevators from August 1 to September 28 totalled approximately 240,000,000 bushels, compared with 164,000,000 bushels during the same period last year.

Comments on Sept. Wheat Situation

The price of No. 1 Northern wheat in store Fort William, which on the last day of September stood at 71 cents a bushel, advanced no less than 11 1/2 cents, or by some 16 1/2, during the month of September. The reason for the advance was simply because war had been declared, and the substantial price increase took place in spite of the following price-depressing factors which made their appearance during the month.

Canada, it is estimated, will have a surplus of wheat for sale of no less than 416 million to supply a world market which is expected to take no more than 160 million. Canadian visible stocks at the end of September were no less than 256 million, as compared with 193 million only at the same time a year ago.

Mr. Broomhall estimates that the world's visible amount of wheat and flour, on September 1st, was 479 million bushels, as compared with only 334 million a year ago. Estimates also were made by authorities that the world's total supply of wheat on hand hence the world's total surplus, is greater than ever before recorded in history.

If in spite of all these extremely bearish factors, price was able to rise 11 1/2 cents during the month, it can only be regarded as a tribute to the effectiveness of the open futures markets of Winnipeg, Chicago and Buenos Aires, in being able to register not only the present situations of supply and demand in the world, but also the risks of possible future losses of wheat through enemy action, and the possibilities of the effect on prices of future money inflations by the great nations.

Such a substantial increase in the price (enjoyed by all farmers) taking place in the face of a price-depressing condition, can only be brought about through the actions of a free and open market where buyers and sellers are able to express immediately their judgment about future events through the medium of prices which from moment to moment they bid and offer.

When he turned out to avoid hitting a truck which had stopped suddenly, Mr. Norman Taylor had the misfortune to overturn his car on the highway east of town, on Sunday evening last. The top of the car was badly damaged and the windows were broken, but the driver himself was not injured.

New Uniform

Comfort and ease of movement is the keynote of the new uniform which will be issued to the Canadian Active Service force. Consisting of a roomy, wide-sleeved blouse and a pair of loose-fitting trousers, the new uniform somewhat resembles a ski suit. The headgear can be adjusted to meet various weather conditions.

None too Soon

Nickel, bauxite, aluminum and other minerals, as well as scrap metal of all kinds, must not be exported from Canada without a license, according to an order in council passed recently by the federal government. By this means, it will be possible to prevent these essential war materials from being sold either directly or indirectly to enemy nations. In regard to nickel, Canada has virtually a world monopoly.

Here and Now to Parents

I. A. R. Wylie in The Reader's Digest

Some years ago I wrote an article airing a theory concerning the art of living which my own childhood seemed to illustrate. That childhood, highly unconventional from any educational point of view, taught me to do things effectively at the age of 10 which very few accomplish at all at 20. By the time I was 11, I had made extensive bicycling tours through England, entirely alone. Once I fronted, I stayed away for a week and nobody knew where I was or seemed to care much. Though I made friends with anybody, nothing untoward ever happened. My worst experience was when I spent my last penny on a pair of passionately desired brown shoes and had to ride 50 miles with only a boiled egg for nourishment. I was an inveterate theoretiac, and one well-remembered week I attended six performances in London. I went alone, and let myself into our house with my own latchkey. At 14 I was given £100 and a return ticket to Norway. But finally, under the spur of conventional disapproval, my father yanked me back into childhood. On my return from Norway, I was sent to a finishing school, where I was considered incapable of crossing the road unaccompanied. To the three years spent there I owe the best part of my subsequent mistakes and weaknesses.

My article got me into a lot of trouble. Some of my fan mail suggested that I was a liar. Anxious and co-ordinate their movements, mothers inquired whether they should take responsibility, accept the consequences of ill-judged and anti-social actions, and face themselves and their world squarely, quickly, and without illusions.

It can be done. I did it. And I was not a "bright" child. I was not even a very well-balanced child. I was naturally extravagant and violent tempered. But by the time I was 14 I had learned that I had to control my temper or suffer the consequences and that if I spent my money on riotous living (or brown shoes) I had to go hungry.

In the Middle Ages boys commanded armies—certainly with no more disastrous results than those attained by our best sexagenarian generals. Queen Elizabeth at 15 was not only able to express her decided opinions in excellent Latin, but she was fighting for her life against the most artistic enemies in her sister's court. In those days men and women lived for all they were worth from the moment they could stand upright. They had to. Their expectation of life was too short for dallying in nurseries. Their world was too dangerous. Such men and women, so vigorously prepared, are today's crying need. Instead, the world is populated by a herd of Peter Pans who have never grown up and don't want to.

I have heard it argued that in these difficult days it is better to keep children back as long as possible, because no one wants them. That is certainly true. There is no place for half-baked adolescents crammed with undigested learning, false standards and incapacity to think and act for themselves.

If I had a child I should set 16 as the limit of my responsibilities as guide and philosopher. Afterward I should be prepared to act as friend, even to the extent of lending him (or her) my father's £100 to see how far round the world he could get with it. Of course, if he had been brought up as most children are he would be totally unfit for such an experiment. But I am supposing that he has been self-sufficient for 5 years, and that his education has included a working knowledge of the world. I should expect him to know at least two of its languages, its politics, its finances, its morals, and its lack of them. I should expect him to be able to handle himself like a man under all reasonable circumstances. It is not impossible. I know of one young man who, before he went to Harvard, was given a very small allowance and complete liberty. He traveled alone over Europe, taking a job when he could get one, and returned a full adult, head and shoulders above his contemporaries.

My imaginary offspring will be 17 by the time he returns from his "Wanderjahr" of which he has made either a success or a mess, or a little of both. But he has seen the world with his own eyes, instead of with the eyes of his prejudiced elders; he has had to form his own ideas concerning it, he has learned what part he is likely to play in it—whether that of a fool or a wise man. If he were brilliant intellectually I should then help him to a university career. His experience of real life would preserve him from the ossifying influence of the average academic mind and from the schoolboy standards of the average campfire. If, on the other hand, he were not brilliant—let us say, a natural-born car washer—I should expect him to wash cars efficiently, and not run round in them at my and the community's expense. But whether he were brilliant or stupid, I should be reasonably sure that he would be facing the violent changes that life ahead as a useful adult, working and thinking honestly on his own level. The curse of a deliberately delayed maturity is just this—it delays our discovery of our level until it is too late. Young men and women of average will-to-do families, coddled through school and college, imagine that because they go to cocktail parties, drive cars, and make conducted trips to Europe, they are worldlings who know their world. They know, of course, nothing that will save it or themselves.

Before 1914 we lived in what seemed a secure world. We could afford—or thought we could afford—a race of men who regarded life as a foot ball match, in which decent fellows "played the game". Today only lunatics can harbor such illusions. We are fighting our way through what the future will probably call the Second Dark Ages. If our civilization is to escape the first disaster, we have got to grow up fast and see to it that our children grow up in time to take our places.

The time has gone past when any nation can afford those parental children. Nor are they happy in themselves. Their faces are tense, overstrained, prematurely aged. Paradoxically, too much is expected of them. The father who has scribbled and saved, crippling himself so that his son may have a carefree childhood and a "college education", expects great things in return. If he runs a taxi or a grocery, his son must run a bank or a State, regardless of the fact that he has never learned to run himself.

The result is a physically mature man with the mind of a schoolboy, bluffing his way through, into positions where he is a social menace, terrified of failure, and thus ruthless and unprincipled in his methods to attain success. The gangsters, the grafting politicians, the dishonest financiers who are the bane of American life are in effect nothing but just such overgrown schoolboys stuffed with childish fairy tales and expectations of what fairyland owes them. We have whole nations of schoolboys (and schoolgirls) stamped into schoolboy excesses and follies under the leadership of other schoolboys who, suffering from an inferiority complex, are hell-bent for power. Only physically adult children wishing to escape reality could have thrown themselves under the menacing dictatorship of a Hitler, himself a schoolboy.

We need adult minds—young people who have grown up quickly and are mentally and morally ready to take the helm. Their task is to live from the word "go" to a good finish. Our task is to set them quickly on the course, letting them go by living our own lives, exerting our own capacities, taking our full share of the present. Our own "here and now" is our primary concern. The future is not. It belongs to our children. It is their "merit", their party, their whatever they choose to make of it. The quicker they fit themselves for the responsibility, the more likely there is to be a future. The call to youth today is not "play the game", but "stop playing the game and get down to living!"

KITCHEN HINTS

Doughnuts will crack and brown before they are thoroughly cooked inside if the fat in which they are fried is too hot. Test the fat by frying a one-inch piece of dough. Or, if you have a thermometer, see that it registers 365° F. when the fat is tested.

Sliced bananas baked with canned or fresh apricots make a tasty combination. Serve them warm or cold, plain or topped with whipped cream. Add a dash of ice cream.

Add grapes, seedless or seeded, to lime or mint gelatin for a pleasing flavor contrast to serve with roasts, chops or fowl.

Sardines mixed with salad dressing and a few drops of lemon juice make an excellent filling for tiny tea biscuits. Serve them hot with soups or as an appetizer.

Banana filling appeals to most youngsters. Mash a banana. Thin it with a little orange juice and a few drops of lemon juice and spread the mixture over graham crackers.

Add one teaspoon of cinnamon and one-half teaspoon of cloves to your favorite cookie recipe. The two spices will convert an ordinary dough into something delightfully different.

Custard pies should be baked in the oven for the first ten minutes. The crust will then be set and filling will not soak through the crust. Reduce heat after first ten minutes so that the filling will not boil.

Hot deviled eggs will make a novelty for the canapè tray. Stuff hard-boiled egg halves with a mixture of relish and the yolks. Arrange each half on a small triangle of buttered toast and top it with a square of bacon. Broil or bake until the bacon is crisp. Then serve immediately.

Put the fork into the fat of steak when turning it. If put into meat the juices will escape.

When preparing scalloped vegetable dishes, substitute one can of condensed cream of celery soup plus one cup of milk in place of cream sauce.

It gives a delicious flavor and adds extra minerals and vitamins to the food.

HAPPINESS IN TEN RULES

1. Make up your mind to be happy. It is largely self-hypnotism.
2. Make the best of your lot.
3. Do not take yourself too seriously and imagine that everything that happens to you is of vital importance.
4. Do not take others too seriously, nor worry too much over their opinions.
5. Do not borrow trouble nor worry about the future. Enjoy today and meet tomorrow when it comes.
6. Do not cherish enemies and grudges.
7. Keep in circulation. Go around and meet people.
8. Do not hold post mortems over mistakes you have made or sorrows that have befallen you.
9. Do something for someone less fortunate than yourself.

BETTER HEALTH

BY DR. J. ROSSLYN EARP

NEW YORK STATE DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH

PNEUMONIA

Never ushered in by a chill. A pain in the chest or side, or weakness in the abdomen. A cough which brings up a rusty colored sputum. The pulse is rapid, the breathing rapid, too, and difficult, so that you can't talk without stopping to breathe. The little muscles on each side of the nose may be brought into play. We have the typical picture of pneumonia, that most fatal disease which strikes in late autumn and early spring. It is estimated that there are from 350,000 to 450,000 cases in this country every year. Thousands are carried off in the prime of life.

When I was a medical student I was taught that I could do little more than to secure for my patient good nursing, and that was nursing which would save the patient's strength so that he might husband all his heart's resources for his critical struggle.

But now there is a serum available against pneumonia caused by pneumococci, types 1, 2, 5, 7, 14, and 18. This makes about 85 per cent of all cases of pneumonia. But if the patient is to get the advantage of this life-saving serum it must be given early and the serum must be selected according to the type of pneumococcus with which he is infected. A committee of the New York Academy of Medicine recommends that free laboratory tests should everywhere be made available, that free serum should be available to physicians that request it, that adequate funds should be granted to the department of health for pneumonia control work and for research.

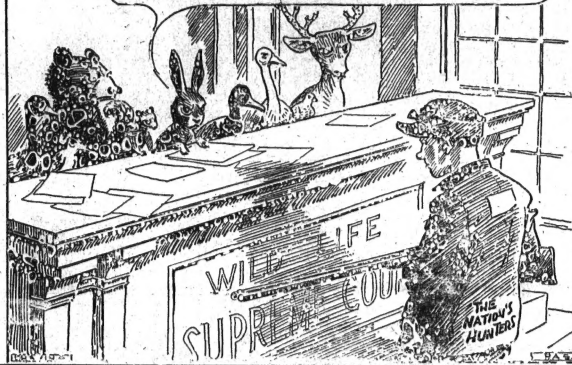

The carrying out of these recommendations in your community in the near future may be a matter of life and death to you or to someone whom you love.

LIVING BEINGS

MOSTLY WATER

Every living thing is dependent on water which constitutes the bulk of the plant and animal body and without it life could not exist. Its conservation in the soil is as important as it is in the animal which can take in a supply at a "filling station" to sustain it between cases in the desert. In hot weather a cow has been known to quench her thirst with over 40 gallons in one day.

Pesticide fields have been changed to deserts through lack of water and by wasteful methods of cultivation which exposed the surface soil to devastating winds. Conversely, desert lands have been made productive by the liberal use of artificial irrigation waters, typically exemplified in Southern California, says B. Leslie Emalie, chemist-agronomist.

From around Salinas, in the Imperial Valley, 45,000 cars of head lettuce were shipped in 1934. All orange, lemon and avocado groves are dependent on artificial supplies of water, and now supplemental nitrogen fertilizers are applied through the medium of the irrigation ditch.

The advantage of placing the readily soluble nitrogen fertilizer in the irrigation water is chiefly that a much better distribution is obtained than when it is applied dry to the surface soil, and there is less loss of nitrogen. The nitrogen fertilizer is dissolved in a tank from which a pipe conveys the solution into the ditch, and the equivalent of up to 400 lbs. of ammonium sulphate per acre may be applied in this way.

STORAGE OF VEGETABLES

It is difficult to give any definite method of storing vegetables on account of the many types of cellars. Some cellars could be changed to meet the varying temperature conditions required by different vegetables. As a general rule cool storages are preferable, states J. Gallaher, Head Gardener, Experimental Station, Kentville, N.S.

Squash, pumpkin, vegetable marrow and citron must be stored in a warm, dry place, between 40 and 50 degrees F. When large quantities are stored they should be piled in single layers on slatted shelves. Fruit should be handled very carefully at all times and should be thoroughly matured before removing from the plants.

To have nice young carrots for storing, the seed should be sown the middle of June; the roots will not be too large nor as likely to be injured by the rust of maggot, which is the cause of many losses in storing. In areas where the cellar is very dry it is best to store in sand or hardwood sawdust. If the cellar is cool and damp, they will keep well if placed in slatted bins without covering, or in barrels if ventilation is provided. This applies to parsnips and roots also.

The Danish Ballhead type of cabbage is the only variety suitable for storing for winter and early spring use. Fully matured heads do not keep as well as those that have not quite attained their maturity. A very cool (34° F.) dry cellar, but not so dry that heads will wilt, is suitable. When weather permits a current of air through the cellar is advisable. Slatted shelves should be used when large amounts have to be stored; pile one or two deep. If the cellar is very damp ventilation should be provided; this will eliminate much loss by rotting. Where only a few heads are to be stored the plants may be lifted with the roots attached, the rough outside leaves broken off and the roots set in sand or soil in the cellar floor. The plants can be placed close together.

A dry atmosphere with a low temperature is essential to keep onions over a long period, but in many localities it is difficult to have bulbs sufficiently ripened to store in low temperatures. When this is so, it is well to place the bulbs in slatted crates or flats in a dry warm place to thoroughly ripen, later moving to the cooler place. It is wise to go over the bulbs occasionally and take out any that are commencing to rot, as once a few begin to rot it will not be long before the whole will be contaminated. Danvers Yellow Globe and the red varieties are the best keepers.

Plants of Brussels sprouts and kale may be stored late in the fall, for winter use, in any cellar that is cool and light. Dig the plants with roots intact and replant in cellar floor or in boxes. Remove the lower leaves as they will decay. Avoid overhead watering. Give a good soaking when planting and not again until the plants show signs of wilting.

Treat celery the same as sprouts and kale, placing the plants quite close in rows of 6 to 8 plants and leaving as much space as possible between rows for air to pass through the tops. Be very careful about watering, only water at the roots and only when they show signs of wilting. Dust the plants with Bordeaux dust, leaving them for a few days before replanting to get over 8 degrees of frost before putting in cellar. Go over the plants occasionally and remove all decaying stalks and leaves.

Store sweet turnips in barrels or boxes if roots are stored when quite dry. Cover the barrels with grain sacks. Sweetweds should never be allowed the wilt. Always keep them in as firm a condition as possible or they will be tough and lose their flavor.

Salsify should be stored in damp sand or hardwood sawdust at a temperature close to freezing.

The World of Wheat

H. G. L. Strange,

Director, Research Department, Searis Grain Company, Ltd.

In spite of the unexpectedly large wheat crop this year, there are still large areas in south-eastern Saskatchewan and in south-eastern Alberta where the farmers will unquestionably require considerable quantities of relief seed. This means that governments will have to purchase seed and make it available to wheat growers now in distress.

The official classifications of some 24,000 farmers' samples made by the "Crop Testing Plan" this last summer revealed that there are many farmers in the three provinces who have Crop Testing Plan "A" or good true-to-variety seed stocks of recommended varieties. The bulk of these farmers now have this good seed grain in their farm homes. It is to be hoped that these farmers will do their best not to sell these stocks to the elevator until they are absolutely obliged to do so, but will hold them back as long as possible in order to make this valuable seed available to their neighbors.

It is sincerely to be hoped, too, that our Dominion and Provincial governments, when they require seed for relief purposes, will purchase these farm stocks of good "Crop Testing Plan" "A" material in preference to grain of unknown quality, much of which may consist of mixed or of unsuitable varieties.

Following factors have tended to raise price: Extended drought in the U.S. winter wheat belt—British millers have now permission to use 20 per cent. of Manitoba wheat in their mixture—Argentine finding a good demand for large quantities of wheat—Margins for futures trading reduced on both Winnipeg and Chicago markets.

Following factors have tended to lower price: World wheat supplies do not have to be on your guard. You can say what you think as long as you are Canadian—German grain harvest 16 million bushels above expectations—South African maize crop shows a record yield—Canada's exportable wheat surplus estimated at 416 million bushels.

Beauty for YOU

The Secrets of Good Looks by Barbara Lynn.

Readers continually ask for some simple setting-up exercises that can be done at odd moments. Here, then, are some that will help to make you keep fit.

Are you got out of bed in the morning do the routine five times: stretch body out with arms out at sides. Lift both legs simultaneously as high as you can, even if you can, over your head; then down again, slowly.

Here is a good stretching exercise that helps to develop the bust and improve the posture and figure generally. Stand with feet slightly apart, arms down at sides. Stretch arms in front up and over the head slowly as far as you can, without straining, then slowly return to original position. Repeat this several times.

To slim hips and waist and improve general line of figure: (A) Stand with feet slightly apart, abdomen in, seat well down, fingers interlaced and raised high over head arms making a frame for the face. Keep frame braced by the arms throughout the exercise, and body absolutely steady from waist down. (B) Swing forward until body and arms are horizontal. Swing body round to right side and travel upwards till arms are over head once more. (C) Turn to the left and swing the body down and round till body and arms are once again horizontal, as in B.

My new booklet on Beauty care contains other interesting exercises as well as helpful advice on most beauty subjects. Send four one-cent stamps for your copy, and don't hesitate to ask about your own personal beauty problems. All letters are confidential. Address: Miss Barbra, Que.

WHAT IS A FRIEND?

What is a friend? I will tell you. It is a person with whom you dare to be yourself. Your soul can go naked with him. He seems to ask you to put on nothing, only to be what you are. He does not want you to be better or worse. When you are with him you feel as a prisoner freed.

Dale Carnegie 5-Minute Biographies

Author of "How to Win Friends and Influence People."

J. PIERPONT MORGAN

They Came After Him With Guns and T.N.T.—But He Still Raises Easter Lilies

Who is the most powerful man in the world today? Mussolini? Stalin? Hitler? That, of course, is a matter of opinion. But one thing is certain. The most powerful man in the world of finance is J. Pierpont Morgan, Dictator of Wall Street, High Mogul of the World of Stocks and Bonds.

Yet as a person, he is almost totally unknown. It would hardly be an exaggeration to call him a man of mystery. He shuns publicity and his hatred of photographers amounts to a phobia.

When angered, he is blunt to the point of indiscretion. In fact, he is so outspoken he has been called "the most undiplomatic man in America."

Six feet tall, with two hundred pounds of sinewy physical courage, he is utterly without fear. For example one day a maniac forced him to talk into Morgan's house, whipped out a gun and threatened to shoot Morgan might have dodged toward a nearby door, but he didn't. Instead, he walked straight toward the gleaming pistol. Instantly there was the crack of an explosion. Morgan staggered. The bullet had plowed into his abdomen. He staggered, but he kept on coming. He leaped upon the madman, wrenched the pistol from his hand, and thrust it into the floor.

He understood those contradictions in your nature that lead others to misjudge you. With him you breathe free. You can take off your coat and loosen your collar. You can avow your little vanities and envies and hates and vicious passions, your meanness and aberrations, and in opening them up to him they are lost, dissolved on the white ocean of his loyalty.

He understands. You do not have to be careful. You can abuse him—neglect him—tolerate him. He likes you. He is like fire that purges all you do. He is like water that cleanses all you say. He is like wine that warms up to the bone. You can weep with him, laugh with him, sin with him, pray with him. Through and underneath it all he sees, knows and loves you. A friend, I repeat, is one with whom you dare to be yourself.

SPLIT FINGERNAILS

They are troublesome and unsightly, but they are not dangerous. Perhaps that is why so little is written about them in the medical text books.

Fingernails split when they become too dry. This happens in general diseases that result in poor circulation of the finger tips. In these cases the nail gets dry because it is ill nourished and the best way to restore it good supply is to treat the disease. Besides some rather rare diseases of the nerves which control the blood supply such diseases as tuberculosis, diabetes and kidney disease may result in split fingernails.

Split nails may also be dried out by the local action of certain chemicals. Much soaking in soda may have this effect. Certain nail polishes, polish remover and cuticle remover have been blamed, but little is known about this. Bear in mind, however, that such strong chemicals as potash lye may be sold for removing cuticle, and that there is no federal law to control the composition or advertising of cosmetics. Of course there ought to be one.

As local treatment for this condition, you may use a nightly application to the cuticle of Balsam of Peru, 50 per cent in castor oil to stimulate nail growth. Split nails may be protected by a thin coat of vasoline and the nails should be cut with scissors because the use of a nail file on brittle nails is likely to make them split worse.

POISON IVY

In most rural communities this evil plant is common. It gets in its baneful work on tourists, campers, vacationists, as well as the native rural folk, and in the warm weather it is a very painful affliction. I have seen patients literally writhing, eyes swollen shut, high fever, and sometimes delirium, and all from ivy poisoning. It is not to be accepted lightly. Severe cases call for skilled medical attention.

Look out for poison ivy with its leaves of three, in a crowd, growing vigorously over blighted trunks of trees, upon old fences and in neglected places. It is easy to know and avoid, if one tries.

Vigorous scrubbing with plenty of soap water will sometimes ward off or lessen an attack; after one has got in contact with the leaves, bear in mind that this is an acid poison and it takes "alkalies" to neutralize it.

Do not touch anything with ivy poisoning has been with small parts of grain alcohol and two water. The alcohol will destroy the acids, but it rapidly causes the inflamed skin, and the two water counteracts the effect. Apply by cloth and in the morning and at night. It is a good idea to use Calamine Lotion, which can be prepared by your local druggist, it is also successful in many cases.

Never treat poison ivy with salicylates or "hot" ointments, they speed up the poison in the tissues. Sugar of lead is a powerful antiseptic, but it is a potent irritant of the skin. If you are extremely allergic to the poison, consult your physician on the advisability of the following means of treatment.

Two armed detectives now keep constant vigil in front of the Morgan offices; and the roof of his low building is covered with heavy iron screening to protect it from bombs which might be thrown from neighboring skyscrapers.

In the inner sanctum of that solid, unostentatious building stretch two rows of desks, one behind the other, like seats in a school-room. At these desks work the eighteen Morgan partners—and at the very back of them all, like a schoolmaster supervising a class at examination time, sits Morgan, the head of the firm.

No other private banking house in the history of the world has played so important a role in the financial affairs of nations. Not even the Medici of Florence or the Rothschilds of Europe have enjoyed such far-flung prestige. The Rothschilds saved Europe from Napoleon; but Morgan, more than any other single financial force, made the Allies victorious in the bloodiest war this troubled earth has ever known.

J. P. Morgan is as much at home in the poignancy of London as he is in the roar and sput of New York. For years, while his father was living, he was head of the English branch of Morgan & Co., and when he came back to Wall Street, he introduced the English custom of having tea in the afternoon.

He is one of the greatest pillars of the Episcopal Church in America, yet he corresponds regularly with Pope Pius XI in Rome. And when he visits the Vatican, he and the Pope sit for hours discussing—what do you suppose?—rare manuscripts written in Coptic, the medieval language of Egypt.

Mr. Morgan's private library houses many illuminated manuscripts written by the old monks five hundred years before Columbus discovered America. He has priceless folios of Shakespeare and a copy of the Gutenberg Bible. That one book alone is probably worth a fifth of a million dollars.

J. P. Morgan is famous for his knowledge of Shakespeare and the Bible; yet he dearly loves to settle down to a good detective story even as you and I.

He married his wife, and since her death in 1925, he has kept her room exactly as she left it. She succeeded to his vast fortune, but she was not a miser. She was generous, and she was kind. She was the woman he loved.

Extremely fond of flowers, she belonged to a garden club which required its members to cultivate a garden with their own hands. And even today, J. P. Morgan—one of the world's richest men—puts on his overalls and hoes the weeds and ties up the vines in the garden which once belonged to his wife.

LIGHT UP

...For Easy Seeing!

THE main reason for using light in your home is to make seeing easier. You use it as an aid to your eyes. There are various tasks, however, which your eyes are called upon to perform. These require different intensities of light. Where there is much fine work, such as reading or sewing, suitable light must be provided or the eyes soon become tired and strained. Sight is priceless, light is cheap. Make sure you provide your eyes with sufficient light for easy seeing.

YOUR home can be eye-saving at surprisingly low cost. Ask your dealer to show you the smart TRI-LITE lamps scientifically correct for safe-guarding sight. These lamps are handsome in appearance and provide soft, glareless illumination instantly adjustable to your needs of the moment.

ENLISTING

GOLF

The head of the German army ended his orders at the beginning of hostilities with these words: "Forward with God for Germany," repeating the phrase used by the Kaiser at the start of the World War.

The head of the Polish State, in a similar manifesto, urged his people to fight with assurance, thinking of the

"rightness of the cause" and "confidence in the justice of God."

The story is told of Abraham Lincoln that a friend once asked him:

"Do you think God is on our side?"

He replied, "I'm much more concerned to be on God's side."

Is there not here a key for every individual who today seeks a right course amid war's confusions? When God's support is claimed for conflict, human aims, a clear and certain sense of right will uphold him who seeks, not to enlist Delity, but first to know and do His will. His eternal purposes are not turned aside by mortal designs. Unchanging Love is not involved in hateful conflict. His children can enlist His help only to achieve His purposes, only as they express His nature. In whatever human course they take that must be their first concern—Christian Science Monitor.

FIRE PREVENTION

IN THE HOME

This is fire prevention week and the best place for fire prevention to start is in the home. Chastity should start there, according to ancient saying, and certainly safety should come first. In order to safeguard the home inspection should be made, not only

Fire Prevention Week but periodically throughout the year. All heating and lighting equipment, examined, chimney and pipes kept clean of soot.

No smoke pipes permitted through combustible walls; disposition of ashes safeguarded. The fuse cabinet should be of metal or asbestos lined.

Fuses in all fuse blocks, none of them bridged, and not over 15 ampere fuses used in branch circuits. All drop cords should be insulated, and not supported on any conductive material.

Electric irons always detached when not in use and kept on metal stands.

Matches should be kept out of the reach of children and the children should be regularly taught the danger of fire and not to play with matches.

The safest type of match to use is the Safety Match, which may be lighted only on the box.

Closets should be kept clean and all rubbish removed from the entire premises. Cleanliness is next to God-liness. Perhaps that is the reason it always plays such an important part in fire prevention.

This year again special emphasis is being placed on the inspection of dwellings during Fire Prevention

Week and you may expect a visit from your local firemen. Are you ready for them?

AMONG THE OLD-TIMERS

REMINISCENCES OF OTHER DAYS

TEN YEARS AGO

Mr. R. Legear has been placed in charge of the power plant in town, succeeding Mr. N. Thornhill.

Autumn Leaf schoolhouse was the scene of a jovial "school warning" gathering when parents and friends made merry with the youngsters under the guidance of their teacher, Miss P. Kent. A fair sum of money was raised from the endeavor.

Messrs. Petrie and Ferras have now moved into their new, modern premises.

The first card party of the season was sponsored by Adeline. Rebekah Lodge when 30 tables were in play. Prizes went to Miss M. Turner, Mrs. W. Crowe, Mr. A. Anderson and Mr. C. Drager. Mrs. W. Teague won the special prize.

Having completed the house in town which he was erecting, Mr. Walter Gray is moving Mrs. Gray and two daughters in to town, where the girls will attend high school this term.

Mr. and Mrs. Berreth, of Gilt Edge, moved this week to Hardisty district, where they will reside.

Mr. E. Fickelton left on Saturday for Wellfleet, Nebraska, where he will be married to Miss Barbara Carley, formerly of the teaching staff here.

FIFTEEN YEARS AGO

Mr. G. Layne, the new teacher, arrived in town at the week end and commenced his duties on Monday morning.

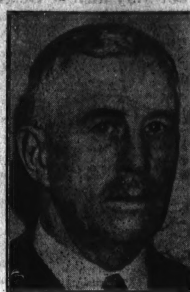

Mrs. S. Kitchen, sr., arrived back from Vancouver, where she has been endeavoring to regain her health. In order that her children may complete their schooling, Mrs. Robt. Watson moved to Edmonton this week to reside.

Mr. Quan Hall, of the Alberta real-estate, and son Sangho, left for a visit to China. They sailed from Vancouver.

The chairman of the Electrical Utility Committee informs us that on and after October 15th, the "jule" will be available for 23-hour service—the plant being shut down for one hour each day at noon.

In New Fall Style

Hips are definitely part of the fashion picture, according to the collections of several of the famous designers, especially those who specialize in ultra-feminine clothes. Here is a very feminine model, a new autumn frock in brown crepe. The high neck closes in back with a zipper to the waist. Its sleeves are very short. The fitted midriff dips up and down in points. From it two panels continue around to a peplum back, and are draped to emphasize the hip curve. The skirt is flared with most of the fullness at the sides and in back.

Shower For Edgerton Bride

A "shower" that reached deluge proportions was staged for Miss Jessie Sasse—next week's bride-to-be—at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Pawsey on the evening of Monday, October 2nd, with Mrs. P. S. Pawsey and Mrs. R. E. Stratton as joint hostesses.

By pre-arrangement all those wishing to attend were asked to meet at the Stratton home shortly after 8 p.m., so that everyone could arrive at the shower at once, thus making the party a complete surprise. Before 8:30 o'clock, even standing room was at a premium at the Stratton home, and it was unanimously decided to adjourn to the Pawsey establishment and commence the "doings".

More than 60 ladies trooped through the bluff and filed into the Pawsey home, to the utter amazement of Jessie, who with her mother had been dinner guests with the Pawsey family and were to spend a "nice, quiet evening".

By 9 p.m. a few late comers from out of town had swelled the crowd to 70, taxing Pawsey's spacious living room to the utmost. The usual games and contests being out of the question the ladies were entertained by a home "movie", Norman MacDonald running off reel after reel of film, taken by P. S. Pawsey and various local movie camera fans.

While the pictures were being exhibited, the hostesses and several helpers made ready a huge mound of gifts and added final touches to a model house, complete with gravelled walks, miniature pond, electric lights and even real smoke curling from the chimney. The house had originally been intended to hold the gifts but, large as it was, it could not begin to house them all so the idea was abandoned and after the admiring crowd had examined the house, willing hands passed close to 100 fascinating looking parcels to the lucky bride-to-be, which she opened with many pleased ejaculations.

Obviously moved by such a wonderful demonstration of friendship, and owing to the long time required to open all the packages, Jessie was excused the customary "thank you" speech. It would be impossible to list all the gifts, suffice it to say that it will be many years before she will have to replenish her stock of pyrex ware, fancy china, glasses and kitchen utensils, not to mention such things as silver, lamps, cushions, etc. The evening was rounded out with a bountiful lunch and the heartiest wishes of all present for a long and happy married life.

Miss Sawyer goes to the altar on Sunday next, October 15th, and the ceremony will take place in Edmonton, with the Rev. Andrew Love officiating.

BE A SAFE DRIVER

Answers to Questions on Driving on Page 4.

1. On the average your car will travel 14 feet while you are thinking about putting on the brakes, and 28 feet after you have applied the brakes—a total of 42 feet. Most people forget about the "thinking" or reaction time.
2. To the right. Always in the same direction as the skid.
3. The crazy driver saved exactly 3 minutes, or 15 seconds per mile.
4. Walk on the left side facing the oncoming traffic. In dusk or darkness carry something white, wear light-colored garments, or carry a light.
5. First, clean the outside of the lenses, second the inside of the lenses, third, the bulb and reflector. If the lights are still dim, look at your battery connections and terminal fastenings.
6. Six seconds is the minimum passing time required. However, you need some leeway, so you should have 9 or 10 seconds. With this knowledge and long practice you can learn to avoid being involved in this type of accident while passing.
7. Depress your lights.
8. In the ash can. Remember, too, that even new tires of unequal pressure can completely nullify the "self-equalizing" of hydraulic brakes. A 2-pound variation may be vital at high speed.

'GIRL OF THE TURF'

By MARY DOUGLASS STOVALL.

It was a strange inheritance that Cary Morgan came into: half a racing stable, a grasping and shallow mother, a young man who hated her, and an ignorance of the turf and its tricks as complete as her ignorance of love. But there it was, those were the cards life dealt her to start the game with. . . . How she played—and misplayed—her hand makes a stirring, astonishing story. Read it, the new serial beginning next week.

Cranberry Catsup
4 pounds fresh cranberries
2 cups vinegar
2 cups water
4 cups brown sugar
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon ground cloves
1 teaspoon allspice
1 teaspoon salt

Cook cranberries, vinegar and water together until all the skins pop open. Put through sieve. Combine with remaining ingredients and cook together for 5 minutes. Seal in hot, sterilized jars. Makes 2 1/2 quarts of catsup.

Cranberry Nut Bread
1 cup cranberries
1 cup sugar
3 cups flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
Grated rind 1 orange
1 egg
1 cup milk
2 tablespoons melted butter

Put cranberries through food chopper and mix with 1/2 cup of sugar. Sift remaining sugar, flour, baking powder and salt together and add nuts and orange rind. Beat egg slightly, combine with milk and melted butter, and add to first mixture. Fold in cranberries. Bake in buttered bread pan in moderate oven, 350° F., for about 1 hour.

Winter Fruit Tarts
2 cups fresh cranberries, halved

CANADIAN FISH AND CHIPS
The popular Old Country combination of fish and chips comes to Canadian tables with slight variations. We use shoe-string potatoes and the fish is Canadian born and bred. But the popularity of this dish is widespread and the flavor of home-fried fish cannot be surpassed.

Fish and Chips
Clean fillets of fish. Season with salt and pepper. Roll in flour, dip in thin batter and fry at 360° F., in deep fat. Rolling the fish in flour first will make batter cling evenly. Serve with shoe-string potatoes, which are also fried in deep fat, and a heart of lettuce salad. Accompany fish with a generous serving of lemon quarters.

To make batter, take:
1 cup sifted flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 eggs
2-3 cup milk
1 tablespoon salad oil or melted butter

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Beat eggs, add oil and milk. Combine with dry ingredients. Beat into a smooth batter.

Now that the Bunker Hill Monument Association has, after more than a century, opened its membership to women, we may expect to find some of our feminine leaders on the roster which originally carried such names as Daniel Webster and Edward Everett. This may be late recognition of the splendid work of Sara Joseph Hale without whose aid the monument might never have been built. Through her efforts the women of the country provided the funds to complete the monument. Mrs. Hale was editor of Godey's Lady's Book, first of the women's magazines. According to Rud Fisher, who has written the life of the woman editor, it was in 1840, after the Monument Association had struggled for funds for 17 years, that Mr. Hale had the idea of getting the women of the country to cooperate in they did contribute $30,000, the proceeds from the sale of their various kinds of handwork.

The Duchess of Hamilton, wife of the first peer of Scotland, has established the "Animal Defense House" in St. James's Place, London, as headquarters of the Anti Vivisection Society, of which the Duchess is president. In the headquarters are exhibits showing how cruelly to animals can be avoided. There are also exhibits of vegetable substitutes for furs, feathers and leather.

A law class for women, started 4 years ago at New York University has now been changed to a non-technical series of discussions on the rights and liabilities of women in the eyes of the law. Justice Agnes M. Craig, the first woman to be elected to the bench of the Municipal Court of the City of New York, will be among this year's lecturers.

Plain Bread Stuffing
One loaf stale bread, 1 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon white pepper, 1/2 cup melted butter, 2 eggs, hot water or hot milk.

The eggs can be omitted but if the stuffing will be served cold as well as hot, you will find the eggs an improvement.

Crumbs bread coarsely, discarding crust. Sprinkle with salt and pepper. Add melted butter, tossing crumbs lightly with a fork to mix thoroughly. Thorough mixing at this point insures a light fluffy dressing. Add eggs well beaten and mix lightly with fork. Add not more than one-half cup boiling water or hot milk and mix lightly. Cover and let stand ten minutes. The dressing should be as moist as wanted for serving, so if it isn't as moist as you like it, add a few more tablespoons of hot liquid. Fill cavity of bird with stuffing and sew up the opening with a large darning needle threaded with a strong thread.

To make celery stuffing add one and one-half cups minced celery. The leaves may be used too.

For sausage stuffing omit butter and add one-half pound sausage meat cooked to a crisp brown after removing from cases.

Oyster stuffing uses one pint oysters with oyster liquor for liquid and nutmeg, lemon juice and parsley for seasoning.

Add one cup chopped and sautéed mushrooms to make mushroom stuffing.

Corn bread makes a good stuffing, too. Use it as you would white bread or use a half and half combination of corn bread and white bread. Any of the variations can be made to suit the occasion.
